

2022 Capital Gains Distribution Estimates

Throughout the year, mutual funds may realize gains and losses from selling securities held in their portfolios. Tax laws require mutual funds to distribute the net gains from these sales to shareholders by year-end. To help with your 2022 tax planning, listed below are the capital gains distributions estimated to be payable from the Buffalo Funds, based on transactions posted through November 8, 2022.

Please remember that the amounts listed are estimates and may vary from the actual distributions. The amount of capital gains distributions you receive will be reported on your year-end account statement (mailed in January 2023) and on your Form 1099-DIV. Some of the Buffalo Funds may show no estimated distribution at this time, however, please keep in mind that this may change. The estimates provided are preliminary. Actual distribution amounts will be based on gains and losses realized through the Funds fiscal year end. Tax adjustments may cause losses to be deferred or may cause unrealized amounts to be treated as realized. Changes in shares outstanding may cause per share amounts to vary. Short term capital gains are taxable as ordinary income. The estimates in this chart do not reflect calculations for Qualified Dividends.
